Trouble-Proof Your Roof

You can prolong your roof's functional life by spotting potential problems before they become costly catastrophes. Check out our tips that will help you keep your roof in tip-top condition.

Vent it out

- What to notice: Over time, exposure to moisture in the attic space may cause the roof structure to rot. Moisture buildup can also speed mold growth, reduce the efficacy of insulation and cause structural deterioration.

- What to do: Proper roof ventilation may help extend the life of the roof covering and help prevent ice dams from forming in the winter. The ventilation system should include both intake and exhaust vents that allow fresh air to flow through the attic space. Also, make sure your bathroom ventilation is not directed into your attic space. Use ductwork to push problem-causing moisture to the exterior of your attic.

Be an eagle eye

- What to notice: Check the rubber flashings around roof penetrations like fans or plumbing vents for splits or cracks, which can lead to leaks. Inspect metal flashing areas, such as those found around chimneys, to see if they're present and in good condition. Also look for raised shingles: They're a sign your roof isn't properly venting hot temperatures. Never inspect your roof alone, when you're tired or when you're in a rush. If you don't feel comfortable walking on the roof, hire a qualified professional to do regular inspections.

- What to do: Little problems don't fix themselves, and they have a way of causing bigger troubles. If you're seeing one or more of these problems, call a roof specialist. Have the professional inspect your roof thoroughly and make necessary repairs.

Call for help

The solution to roofing problems isn't to just slap more roofing tar on the area. Tar doesn't expand and contract with temperature changes the way a roof is supposed to, so it can actually make the problem worse—and harder to properly correct later on. For most roof repairs, calling a professional is your best bet.

October 14, 2011 Recap

GUEST SPEAKER:

California State Assembly 50th District, Assemblyman Ricardo Lara

DISCUSSION:

Legislative Updates from Sacramento | Initiatives | Events Taking Place in the District

By TAMMYE McDUFF DUNN
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
BELLFLOWER BULLETIN | ZION PUBLISHING

Assembly member Ricardo Lara (D-Bell Gardens) was elected with 78% of the vote in November 2010 to represent the southeast Los Angeles County cities of the 50th Assembly District. He has worked for more than 12 years in the legislature insisting that the ideals of honesty; hard work and helping those less fortunate be instituted in his policies. Raised in a blue collar immigrant family in East Los Angeles, Ricardo knows first-hand the challenges facing the cities and communities of Southeast Los Angeles County. He is fervently committed to improving the quality of life for working families in California.

It has been a very interesting year for Assemblyman Lara. He has been working in Sacramento focusing on those issues that matter to businesses.

"Everybody talks about jobs and creating policy that is going to help our businesses. But there are very few people in Sacramento that know what it is to actually make a payroll; hire a qualified employee or fight the frivolous lawsuits that affect so many businesses and restaurants today."

Because of this Assemblyman Lara has created his advisory council of various business owners of throughout the 50th district.

"I will be the first to tell you that I don't know everything. I want to be able to sit down with you and talk one on one about what your needs are, so that I can articulate the positions on the issues that are important to you."

Ricardo Lara wants to create an environment where all businesses can not only survive but thrive. With 95% of all jobs in the country being created by small businesses he believes that it is important to be able to look at the state agencies and figure out where and how we can maximize our dollars.

As Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee he has seen to it that 10 out of the 11 bills that he has championed have been passed. Lara states "It is not a Republican issue, it is not a Democratic issue, it is an American issue. How to help people and their business survive."
